

Can I make my Project Private?

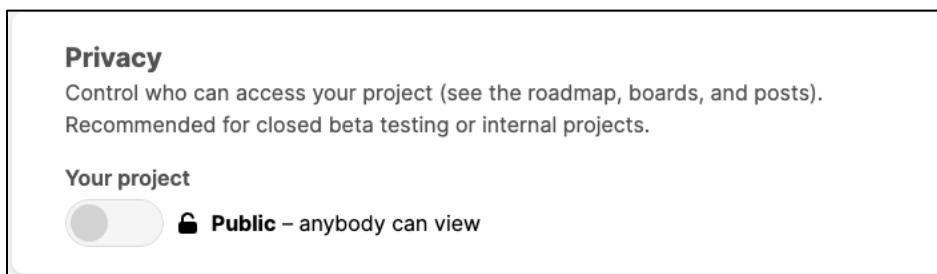

If you are doing some testing in FeedBear or have an internal project, you may want to make your project private.

To make your project Private,

1. Click your profile icon (top-right corner of page) and
2. Select Project Settings in the drop-down menu.

3. Select Privacy.
4. Click the button to set your Project from Public to Private.

More Privacy Options:

- Add Allowed email domains to restrict only users with a specified email address domain to access your project
- Add Allowed email addresses to allow only users with a specified email address to access your project.

Privacy

Control who can access your project (see the roadmap, boards, and posts).
Recommended for closed beta testing or internal projects.

Your project

 Private – only allowed users can view

Allowed email domains

Only users with a following email address domains will have access to your project:

No allowed domains yet

Add allowed domain

Type a domain without "@"

Allowed email addresses

Only users with a following email addresses will have access to your project:

No allowed email addresses yet

Add allowed email address

Note: FeedBear will not send invites to these addresses. Users need to create their accounts themselves.